

Basic Editing

Case Study

Before Editing

---

"The patient is in a coma. The injury... the head injury I mean, is internal; internal blood clot, which is considered dangerous, fatal. We have to keep Mr. Raheza under observation. This traumatic brain injury is not very rare, but also not so common. He is lucky that you all admitted him in time. Our team is trying their best, just believe in his will power to be strong enough to co-operate, and may Lord shower His blessings. If he recovers from his coma and responds to our treatment and medication, then there is hope, but if doesn't, then I don't want to be negative or trample over your prayers, but science tends to challenge faith). The impact of the collision was not that huge, but the affected area in the cerebrum was delicate. But don't worry. We have advanced technology, a very advanced team, a very sincere team who have never failed before."

Two balls hiding behind the grey eyelashes of the India-settled-British doctor were not at all compatible with his soothing words, unveiled by his experienced tongue. In spite of being illiterate, my grandmother sensed that though, she feared switching to other mode, as the doctor's wrinkle-obsessed-eyes were a solace, a rumour stopper. But there were no 'magnetic eye' connections of any doctor with my mom, who had equally heard of the hospitality of hospitals, and equally doubted the compatibility of words and their meanings underneath. Her empty eyes brimmed over suddenly, flooded, and she fainted (although consciously enough to land safely on the sofa, supported by different hands). And my grandfather, in the moment, detected that his grip over me had loosened and reacted, reflecting his extraordinary-exceptional-reflexes-of-old-age, thus preventing one more member of the family from concussion. The atmosphere was heavier than before, but the bulging, ominous ball of the doctor had disappeared, like the magical mantra of 'open sesame' or 'close sesame'. However his face shone more under perspiration than before, as, more secrets were to be shared, and more deception of sole faith to be debated.

---

Basic Editing (Track Changes)

"The patient is in a coma. The injury ~~the~~ head injury I mean, is ~~err~~ internal; internal blood clot, which ~~in medical terms~~ is considered dangerous, fatal ~~err~~ ~~w~~ ~~W~~ We have to keep Mr. Raheza under ~~surveillance~~ observation. This traumatic brain injury is not very rare, but ~~also~~ not ~~also~~ so common. ~~H~~ ~~Perhaps~~, he is lucky that you all admitted him in time ~~(as already told, he was destined to be alive)~~. Our team is trying their best, just believe, in his will power to be strong enough to co-operate, and may Lord shower His blessings ~~(inhe dawao se jyada duaon ki zaroorat hai)~~. If he overcomes recovers from his coma and responds to our treatment ~~and~~ ~~our~~ medication, then there is surely ~~a~~ hope, but, if doesn't, then ~~err~~ I don't want to be negative or ~~to be~~ trampler over ~~of all~~ your prayers, but science tends to challenge faith ~~(being optimistic, all was needed)~~. The impact of the collision was not that ~~strong~~ ~~huge~~ ~~but~~, the affected area in the cerebrum was delicate, ~~b~~ ~~But~~ don't worry, ~~w~~ ~~W~~ We have advanced d technology, a very advanced d team, a very sincere team who have d never failed before."

Formatted: Font: Raleway, 12 pt

Two balls hiding behind the grey eyelashes of the India-settled ~~British~~ doctor, were not at all ~~in compatibility~~ compatible with his soothing words, ~~anviled~~ ~~unveiled~~ by ~~the~~ ~~his~~ experienced tongue. ~~And~~ ~~In spite of~~ ~~even~~ being illiterate, my grandmother sensed that, though, she feared switching to other mode, as ~~the~~ doctor's wrinkle-obsessed-eyes, were a solace, a rumour stopper, ~~scotch~~, ~~holding her~~, ~~hypnotically~~ ~~like a rod held with a string and will crash if the contact gets scissored~~. But there were no 'magnetic eye' connections of any doctor with my mom, who had equally heard of the hospitality of hospitals, and equally doubted the compatibility of words and their meanings underneath. Her empty eyes brimmed over suddenly, ~~from nowhere and over~~ flooded, and she fainted (although was consciously enough to land safely on the sofa, supported by different hands). And my grandfather ~~in~~ the ~~faux~~ ~~pasmoment~~, detected that his grip over me had loosened and reacted, reflecting his extra-ordinary-exceptional-reflexes ~~of the old age~~, thus (preventing one more member of the family from concussion). The ~~vicinity~~ ~~atmosphere~~ was heavier than before, but the bulging, ominous ball of the doctor had disappeared.

like ~~a~~ ~~the~~ magical mantra of 'open sesame' or 'close sesame'. However his ~~face~~ shone more under perspiration than before, as, ~~more~~ secrets were to be shared, and ~~more~~ deception of sole faith to be debated.

(Ahun!!! I feel it necessary to admit, 'myself sacredly in love with fat-lipped, clean collegiate beauty queen — Angelina Jolie;; drugs given by a Marathi-teen was powerful enough to make me sure of the quake heart feels for her and for and this feel will shape avidly and contemporarily soon, to lead my love life')

Comment [M1]: Out of context; doesn't make sense

After Editing

---

"The patient is in a coma. The injury ... the head injury I mean, is internal, internal blood clot, which is considered dangerous, fatal. We have to keep Mr. Raheza under observation. This traumatic brain injury is not very rare, but also not so common. He is lucky that you admitted him on time. Our team is trying their best, just believe in his will power to be strong enough to co-operate, and may lord shower his blessings. If he recovers from his coma and responds to our treatment and medication, then there is hope, but if doesn't, then I don't want to be negative or trample over your prayers, but the affected area in the cerebrum was delicate. But don't worry. We have advanced technology, a very advanced team, a very sincere team who have never failed before."

Two balls hiding behind the grey eyelashes of the India-settled-British doctor were not all compatible with his soothing words, unveiled by his experienced tongue. In spite of being illiterate, my grandmother sensed that though she feared switching to other mode, as the doctor's wrinkle-obsessed-eyes were a solace, a rumour stopper. But there were no 'magnetic eye' connections of any doctor with my mom, who had equally heard of the hospitality of hospitals, and equally doubted the compatibility of words and their meanings underneath. Her empty eyes brimmed over suddenly, flooded, and she fainted. And my grandfather, in the moment, detected that his grip over me had loosened and reacted, reflecting his extra-ordinary-exceptional-reflexes-of-old-age, thus preventing one more member of the family from concussion. The atmosphere was heavier than before, but the bulging, ominous ball of the doctor had disappeared, like the magical mantra of 'open sesame' or 'close sesame'. However, his face shone more under perspiration than before, as more secrets were to be shared and more deception of sole faith to be debated.

---